

One year ago today, on December 1, 2012, Fielek Builders broke ground on what would become our new home. Today we stand at the end of our driveway viewing with pride a beautiful house that was built with craftsmanship and attention to detail that is not often seen. The years of home building experience that Julie and Matt Fielek possess show in our Arts and Crafts style ranch home. Julie and Matt are not only excellent building contractors who strive to satisfy the wishes of the home owners, they also use subcontractors who are top-notch craftsmen. This results in a building team that has produced a home that exceeded our expectations.

Building a home is an expensive proposition and it is important that the future home owner has confidence in the integrity and ability of the builder. We were able to build this home on time and on budget. From the initial meeting, to the planning meetings, the many walk -thrus during the building process to the completion we had a comfortable and stress free relationship with Julie and Matt. The very few change we requested were handled promptly and with our wishes coming first, although they were always willing to give us their opinion and input, which we greatly appreciated. We have been in our house for 3 months and every person who has visited has loved it and been amazed at its craftsmanship, beauty and functionality.

The last point we would like to stress is that when building a house, you get what you pay for. We spoke with other builders who claimed they could build a house of comparable size for less money. But if you want a unique house that is built exactly as you want it, by exceptional craftsmen, and you want to actually enjoy the experience, we strongly recommend Fielek Builders.

Kevin and Pam Bell

December 1, 2013