

Dear Potential Fielek Builder Customers:

Upon learning of our impending transfer to Michigan, we looked at building a home rather than purchasing an existing home on the market. We originally approached Fielek builders for the project because they offered the type of home in the location we were looking. With complete honesty, Julie let us know that as much as she would like the project, she explained that Fielek builders would not be able to meet the timeline we needed.

It was this integrity approach that led us back to Fielek builders in search of a contractor to complete the remodeling project in the home we purchased. After weeks of receiving quotes from several remodeling contractors, we reached out to Julie about our project. Julie immediately remembered us and agreed to come to the house to scope out the work.

Even though Julie's bid for the project was not the lowest, confidence in the integrity, ability of the builder and the manner in which Julie sat with us to explain every cost, made choosing Fielek builders an easy one.

The process from bid to completion was comfortable and stress free. Like every project, there were changes due to issues discovered within the house and design changes from us. These issues and changes were handled promptly and with our wishes coming first, although they were always willing to give us their opinion and professional input, which we greatly appreciated.

Julie's subcontractor, Patrick Swain, mirrored her professionalism and was delightful with whom to work. The craftsmanship, attention to detail and quality resulted in many features that friends and visitors still compliment when they visit.

The outcome has exceeded our expectations and the Fielek team has become part of the family. We are pleased to endorse and recommend Fielek Builders to you, without reservation.

The Johnson's
March 18, 2015

Johnson's